

The Liquor Bros Responds to Growing Demand for Eagle Rare and E.H. Taylor Small Batch Bourbons

August 03, 2026

Escondido, California - August 03, 2026 -

The Liquor Bros has positioned itself as a destination for bourbon enthusiasts seeking two of Kentucky's most coveted expressions, Eagle Rare and E.H. Taylor Small Batch, as demand for American whiskey continues to surge nationwide.

The online spirits retailer has maintained consistent availability of these highly sought-after bourbons at a time when many collectors and enthusiasts struggle to find them at retail prices. Both expressions have earned legendary status among bourbon connoisseurs for their exceptional quality, heritage, and the Buffalo Trace Distillery's meticulous production standards.

E.H. Taylor Small Batch represents a cornerstone of American whiskey heritage. Named after Colonel Edmund Haynes Taylor Jr., who revolutionized bourbon production in the late 1800s, this bottled-in-bond expression showcases the traditional methods that defined Kentucky bourbon's golden age. The 100-proof bourbon, aged for a minimum of four years in century-old warehouses, has garnered multiple gold medals in 2024 alone, including honors from the American Whiskey Masters and the North American Bourbon and Whiskey Competition.

"The continued demand for these particular bourbons reflects a broader appreciation for authentic American whiskey craftsmanship," said Nora Khoury-Potrus, spirits specialist at The Liquor Bros. "Both Eagle Rare and E.H. Taylor Small Batch represent the pinnacle of traditional bourbon making, which explains why collectors and enthusiasts consistently seek them out despite their limited availability in many markets."

Eagle Rare, aged for a minimum of 10 years, has achieved near-mythical status in bourbon circles. The extended aging process creates a complex flavor profile that distinguishes it from younger expressions, while its relatively accessible price point compared to other aged bourbons has made it a favorite among both seasoned collectors and those exploring premium whiskey for the first time.

The scarcity of these bourbons has intensified in recent years as global interest in American whiskey has expanded. Buffalo Trace Distillery, which produces both expressions, maintains strict production standards and refuses to compromise quality for quantity, resulting in limited annual releases that often disappear from store shelves within hours of arrival.

"What sets these bourbons apart goes beyond their flavor profiles," added Khoury-Potrus. "They represent a connection to bourbon's storied past while delivering the consistency and quality that modern consumers expect. Having reliable access to both expressions allows us to serve customers who understand and appreciate that heritage."

The Liquor Bros specializes in premium spirits and hard-to-find releases, offering an extensive selection of whiskeys, bourbons, and other spirits through its online platform. The retailer strives to provide access to sought-after bottles that can be difficult to locate through traditional retail channels, serving customers nationwide who seek exceptional spirits for their collections or special occasions.
